

Coping With an Inheritance

A windfall from a loved one can be both rewarding and complicated..

Inheriting wealth can be a burden and a blessing.

Even if you have an inclination that a family member may remember you in their last will and testament, there are many facets to the process of inheritance you may not have considered. Here are some things you may want to keep in mind if it comes to pass.

Take your time.

If someone cared about you enough to leave you a sizable inheritance, then likely you will need time to grieve and cope with the loss. This is important, and many of the more major decisions about your inheritance can likely wait. Consider, too, when you're dealing with so much already, you may be too overwhelmed to give your options the careful consideration they need and deserve. You may be able to make more rational decisions once some time has passed.

Don't go it alone.

There are so many laws, options, and potential pitfalls; so the knowledge an experienced professional can provide on this subject may prove to be vitally important. Unless you happen to have extensive knowledge on the subject, seek help.

Do you have to accept it?

While it may sound ridiculous at first, in some cases refusing an inheritance may be a wise move. Depending on your situation and the amount of your bequest — it may be that estate taxes will drain a large amount. Depending on the amount that remains, disclaiming some (or all) of the gift is worth contemplation.

Think of your own family.

When an inheritance is received, it may alter the course of your own estate plan. Be sure to take that into consideration. You may want to think about setting up trusts for your children — to help ensure their wealth is received at an age where the likelihood they'll misuse or waste it is decreased. Trust creation also may help you (and your spouse) maximize exemptions on personal estate tax.

The taxman will be visiting.

If you've inherited an IRA, it is extremely important that you weigh the tax cost of cashing out against the need for instant funds. A cashout can mean you will have to pay (on every dollar you withdraw) full income tax rates. This can greatly reduce the worth of your bequest, whereas allowing the gains of the investment to continue to compound within the account and continuing to defer taxes, may have the opposite effect and help to increase the value of what you've inherited.

Stay informed.

The estate laws have seen many changes throughout the years, so what you thought you knew about them may no longer be correct. This is especially true with regard to the taxation on capital gains. The assistance of a seasoned financial professional may be more important than ever before.

Remember to do what's right for YOU.

All too often an inheritance is left in its original form, which may be a large holding of a single company — perhaps even one started by the relative who bestowed the gift. While it's natural for emotion to play a part, and you may wish to leave your inheritance as it is out of respect for your relative, what happens if the value of that stock takes a nosedive? The old adage never put all your eggs in one basket may be words to live by. Remember that this money is now yours — and the way in which you allocate assets needs to be in line with YOUR needs and goals.

Contact us for help in financial planning.

CEFCU Investment Services & Wealth Management is a marketing name used by CEFCU. CEFCU Investment Services Advisors are registered representatives of CUNA Brokerage Services, Inc. Securities sold, advisory services offered through CUNA Brokerage Services, Inc. (CBSI), member FINRA/SIPC, a registered broker/dealer and investment advisor. CBSI is under contract with the financial institution to make securities available to members. Trust services available through Members Trust Company, a federal thrift regulated by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency. Not NCUA/NCUSIF/FDIC insured, May Lose Value, No Financial Institution Guarantee. Not a deposit of any financial institution.
FR-2035796.1-0218-0320

This material was prepared by MarketingLibrary.Net Inc., and does not necessarily represent the views of the presenting party, nor their affiliates. All information is believed to be from reliable sources; however we make no representation as to its completeness or accuracy. Please note - investing involves risk, and past performance is no guarantee of future results. The publisher is not engaged in rendering legal, accounting or other professional services. If assistance is needed, the reader is advised to engage the services of a competent professional. This information should not be construed as investment, tax or legal advice and may not be relied on for the purpose of avoiding any Federal tax penalty. This is neither a solicitation nor recommendation to purchase or sell any investment or insurance product or service, and should not be relied upon as such. All indices are unmanaged and are not illustrative of any particular investment.