Party Planning for Cash

By Chloe, 10

Everybody loves a party...
...which makes it a great business! I run my own birthday party business. You can too!

The first thing is to decide what party services you can provide and how much you'll charge. Then, it's time to advertise.

Start by advertising with flyers in your own neighborhood. Once you get a client, schedule a meeting to discuss themes, games, and decorations.

If I am helping host the party, I always bring along my "emergency kit." My kit includes extra favors, a camera, and extra batteries.

I love throwing parties. I hope that I get more and more clients to make my business grow.

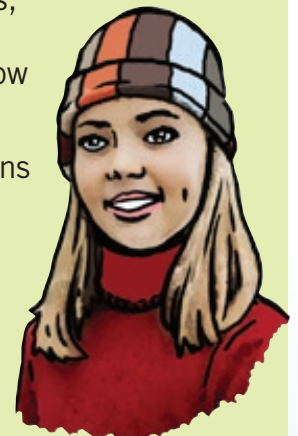

PUT ON A HAT!

Are you freezing your butt off as you wait for the school bus in a T-shirt and shorts?

As much as much as one-third of heat loss is through your head. If you wear a knit cap and pull it down over your ears, your feet will get warm! Wool is best, but nylon or cotton will do the job.

This also works well in bed. If you don't have enough blankets, put on that knit cap! You'll be surprised how quickly you warm up.

When the weather turns warm, use a baseball cap or visor to keep the sun out of your eyes. They're easy to carry—stick one in your backpack.
